

"We're Back, Baby!"
This Week At Judson Sunday School
(9/11/09)

How was your summer? Mine was great! I went to Alabama, Colorado, New Mexico and Vermont. I went to concerts by the Indigo Girls, Paul McCartney and John Fogarty, which more than gives away my age. I saw the movie "Public Enemies," read the book "Public Enemies," and saw the movie again. (Everything in the movie is not as it should be according to the book. I'm just sayin'.) I had a weekly date with a chocolate shake at the Shake Shack. I joined a gym and celebrated by having another chocolate shake at the Shake Shack. In fact, I had such a good time this summer, I can't for the life of me figure out why it has to end. If you are of a similar mind, then have I got a proposal for you!

Being the part-time holy man that I am, it occurs to me that perhaps the purpose of my ministry could be to condense your children's religious education into as few Sundays as possible, say three, maybe four at most. We could pick a month when we have nothing else going on - say January - get Christianized (so to speak) - and then spend the rest of the year at the beach of our choice. Does that sound great or what?! Here are the four lessons I propose to complete your children's religious education:

Week One:	God Is.
Week Two:	You Is.
Week Three:	Why Don't The Two Of You Get Together?
Week Four:	Curb Your Lust. (week four optional)

We'll put it to a vote at the next Sunday School Committee meeting. Did I mention the free croissants for all those who vote YES?

Welcome back, Judsonettes!
